

Honaman to Release First Single in February 2007

Partnership with Airplay Specialists Radio Promotions and Jerry Duncan Promotions

January 2007, Atlanta, Ga. – Justin Honaman, in partnership with Airplay Specialists Radio Promotion (www.airplayspecialists.com) and Jerry Duncan Promotions (www.duncanpromo.com), will release Someone Is Missing Her off of his debut album "Saturday in the South!" in February 2007. The single will initially be promoted to Music Row and Secondary Country radio format stations across the U.S.

"In today's country music market, secondary radio has become a vital part of breaking new artists and selling records. As major market radio has become more conservative about playing new acts, small markets have become essential for career development. Small markets can also account for a large percentage of record sales", states Jerry Duncan of Jerry Duncan Promotions. "55% of all country listeners live in small markets, and 86% of country music is sold because of the country radio station in the local market, so small markets can be responsible for huge record sales."

"We think Justin has a strong product and sounds very good", comments Kacey Jones of Airplay Specialists. "We welcome the opportunity to work with Justin!"

"It is an absolute privilege to be working with Kacey Jones at Airplay Specialists and Jerry Duncan at Jerry Duncan Promotions!" comments Honaman. "When you look at the artists, albums and labels with whom both have worked, you know you are working with the best. We are all about making things happen."
