Justin Honaman Announces Launch Date for "Saturday in the South!"

Debut country music album release set for September 2006

August 2006, Atlanta, Ga. – "Saturday in the South!", Justin Honaman's debut country music album is set for release on September 29, 2006. During the past year, the Coca-Cola Enterprises executive has been working with some of Nashville's best talent in developing and recording this project with a significant percentage of the proceeds set to go to Children's Healthcare of Atlanta (www.choa.org). Produced by Bob Bullock and with an incredible supporting cast of musicians and background singers, the music is sure to bring more than a few smiles to faces of music enthusiasts!

"I am truly excited about both the quality and strength of the material in addition to the silly and fun aspects of the album," explains Justin. "My focus was to find material that would be up-tempo, positive, witty, serious and silly (at times)! In addition to material provided by a number of publishers, we included one of my songs on the album – "Saturday in the South" which I think will play very well with college football enthusiasts!"

20% of the album's proceeds are being distributed to Children's Healthcare of Atlanta (www.choa.org). Children's Healthcare, one of the leading pediatric healthcare systems in the country, is a not-for-profit organization that benefits from the generous philanthropic and volunteer support of the community. Operating three hospitals with more than half a million patient visits annually, Children's is recognized for excellence in cancer, cardiac, neonatal, orthopedic and transplant services, as well as many other pediatric specialties.

"I am so proud to have the opportunity to help Children's Healthcare both financially and in time spent volunteering," states Honaman. "The services they provide to kids and their families are amazing. The real magic is the environment created by the absolutely incredible staff of doctors, nurses and support personnel!"
